

Capital Market Consultants, LLC Announces Commercial Availability of CMC ERResearch™, an internet-based, Advisor-oriented Investment Research Product

Capital Market Consultants, LLC, a pioneering developer of research within Open Architecture Investment Management (OAIM), launches CMC ERResearch™. CMC's advisor-oriented, internet-based research product line fills a huge need for advisors: getting timely practical information about how the markets and the economy are performing so this can be converted into understanding for improved client service.

Milwaukee WI (PRWEB) May 27, 2005 -- Capital Market Consultants, LLC announces the launch of the first of its ECommerce Investment Research products geared for the financial advisor and registered investment advisor marketplace. CMC's advisor-oriented, internet-based research product line fills a huge need for advisors: getting timely access to practical information about how the markets and the economy are performing so this can be converted into understanding for improved client service.

CMC ERResearch™ is a robust chart library geared for the managed money and mutual fund advisory-oriented producer to help them prepare for improved case management and relationships through client education. The CMC ERResearch™ charts are updated monthly within days of the end of the calendar month and provide rolling period information, encompassing hundreds of charts. The CMC ERResearch™ chart library covers six broad, user-friendly data categories: capital market performance (asset classes, investment styles, capitalization segments), a quarterly economic and market commentary, economic data, asset allocation combinations, sector analyses and alternative investments. New charts are regularly added to the library as a result of CMC internal research and chart requests from subscribers. Subscribers are encouraged to submit requests for new charts. You can find out more about CMC's ERResearch™ at <http://www.cmrc.com/investment/researchupdates.php>

Hedge Funds Element Chart

Hedge funds come in a variety of investment styles that result in significant performance variability. Performance differentials vary due to type of securities owned, the strategies employed, as well as the amount of leverage used. These variations in style reveal themselves in changes in performance leadership as seen below in our all hedge fund "element chart." With this kind of rotation, and a largely unregulated industry, it was inevitable that hedge fund of funds would be formed to smooth this performance roller coaster by allocating investment dollars to dozens of individual managers with different investment styles. Maintaining the right blend of individual hedge fund performance attributes in a structured, multi-fund portfolio requires not only keen awareness of market conditions but ongoing due diligence of individual hedge fund holdings and managers. Funds of funds should continue to grow in popularity, becoming the vehicle of choice for entering the hedge fund investment space.
